

Mortgage Brain announces case tracking enhancements to ConveyancingBrain

UK, January 31, 2017: Technology and software solutions expert, Mortgage Brain, has announced a number of enhancements to its online conveyancing service, ConveyancingBrain, making it easier for advisers to manage client cases and conveyancing quotes.

As part of its intelligent case tracking process, advisers using ConveyancingBrain (www.conveyancingbrain.co.uk), will now receive automated emails alerting them to actions required or feedback from solicitors on current cases.

This enhancement will make the communication between the adviser, solicitor and client more responsive, ensuring that important actions are less likely to be missed and making the overall process much slicker from instruction to completion.

In response to changes within the market a new filter has also been applied, which enables advisers to obtain conveyancing quotes for property purchases via a limited company. Advisers using the system also have the choice to provide their clients with a conveyancing quote with, or without, a solicitors name.

Additionally, a new 're-quote' feature has been introduced allowing advisers to obtain fresh conveyancing quotes without having to retype client information.

Mark Loffhouse, CEO of Mortgage Brain, comments, "Listening to customers and responding to market changes is paramount to the success of any technology provider and we pride ourselves on our flexibility and responsiveness in continuing to adapt our systems to meet the needs of our customers.
